[Anush] The first three months of a first year fellow's training is actually protected of all calls. So the first three months usually you're studying for boards, internal medicine boards. So with that in mind the program kind of picks up the slack for lack of better terms. And everybody else covers the first year's calls. So this is a very, important part of the program. And it speaks to how everybody looks after each other and promotes the wellness of all the fellows involved. The rest of the call schedule is split up pretty evenly throughout all the fellows. So each month you'll generally have either one weekend and one evening call, or you'll have just four night calls. And this pretty much separates the months pretty evenly.	Anush addressing camera
