SUMMER READING
Rising CM1 – CM2

Summer is a wonderful time for a child to discover new things and to view the world from a different lens. Summer reading can be a part of that discovery, and can help children develop lifelong reading habits at the same time.

The elementary English teachers ask that each child read two books either from the following lists, arranged by grade and by difficulty level, or of their own free choice.

Rising CM1 - CM2 students are encouraged to create a "one pager" reading project based on their book. Please refer to the attached instructions and documents to create your project. We will display all of the projects on a Summer Reading Bulletin Board.

As the students' abilities and comfort levels with the English language vary greatly, we ask that parents use discretion in managing summer reading activities with their children. Sometimes children will be happy to understand a few words on each page. Pictures will play an important role in comprehension of the text, particularly in our beginner readers. In other cases, students may wish to challenge themselves by selecting books that are more difficult.
