1. Tell us a little about yourself and your background.
   I'm a teacher's husband and a professional data analyst. I've lived in the Fargo area nearly my entire adult life, and I spent years studying education policy while earning my master's degree from Syracuse University.

2. What was the reason you ran for a Board position?
   I believe public education is the greatest force for good in the world. Our entire community benefits from having high-quality public schools, and Fargo needs dedicated, knowledgeable leaders on the school board.

3. What do you see as big challenges for the District going forward? Challenges for K-12 education in North Dakota?
   In the face of stagnating revenues, our biggest challenge will be maintaining financial stability. And if we want to continue investing more in the things that have the biggest impact on student achievement, we will have to reduce spending on less impactful things.

   Another challenge we face is recruiting and retaining the staff we need to deliver a high-quality education.

4. Something you're proud of as a representative of the Fargo Public Schools:
   I'm proud of Fargo's commitment to providing students with a high quality, well-rounded education that sets the standard for schools in our region.
