Campus High School staff met this past week with representatives from Alloy Architecture and Hutton to review several key areas within the new Career and Technical Education (CTE) addition. The discussion focused on the design and functionality of the broadcasting room, the healthcare pathway classroom, the culinary area, and additional instructional spaces. These meetings provided an opportunity for staff to offer feedback and ensure the spaces will effectively support student learning and program needs. We invited USD 261 alumni Jeff Herndon and Lisa Teachman to advise on the broadcasting room as well.

On Monday, March 9, staff from Campus High School, members of the Board of Education, and district administrators will tour the kitchen facilities at the Maize CTE facility. The district is working with the same design firm that assisted Maize with its culinary space. During the visit, the group will review the layout and features of the facility and meet with the design team to discuss the current plans for Campus and consider any potential modifications that may enhance the functionality of the culinary program space.
