

The No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB)

Title I is a federal entitlement program that provides the district and schools serving low-income families with funds to improve student achievement. District and school allocations are based on the percentage of students who are eligible for free or reduced-price lunches. Students in a Schoolwide Title I program do not have to be eligible for free or reduced-price lunches to qualify for Title I services.

Parents must be given information, rights and choices concerning their child's education. The No Child Left Behind Act states that parents have a right:

- to have access to their child's individual performance levels on the statewide assessments
- to know if their child's school is making adequate yearly progress (link to Ohio Department of Education Local Report Cards) http://ilroc.ode.state.oh.us
- to know the qualifications of their child's teacher
- to be informed if their child is being taught by a substitute or a non-highly qualified teacher for longer than four consecutive weeks
- to know about school choice and supplemental educational services
