STUDENT REPRESENTATIVES

Ms. Katelynn Marver, Central High School representative, shared that in February all students participated in career day which included two career sessions and a career fair. The event featured a scavenger hunt for students to complete as they talked to different employers. In March they had a community service day where the students and staff engaged in service projects both in school and in the community. Activities ranged from volunteer work at a local food pantry, preparing food for the warming shelter, helping out at the art center, and then creating windchimes for the Freedom Cry organization. In April they welcomed Officer Renzelmann as the new School Resource Officer for all of the schools in the Central building. With graduation right around the corner, the students are celebrating their walk in their graduation gowns and the presentation of awards and various student recognitions. 14 seniors participated in the Start College Now program by taking a class at Lakeshore College. Two students participated in a workplace co-op. Six students participated in youth tutoring youth (YTY). 30 students participated in and completed at least one early college credit course during their high school career. Ms. Marver stated that she will be joining the workforce and helping to support her sister with her newborn baby.

Mr. Eric Reilly, Étude High School representative, shared that this semester they had a multi-disciplined collaboration with all students participating in a play titled “Arcana Imperii – The Secrets of Power.” All students took an extensive list of individual roles to see this production to reality. The roles included but were not limited to script writer, director, actor, set design, costume creation, music production, live music performers, a tech crew, media content creators, dancers, and more. The production was presented to the community on Thursday, May 21 at the John Michael Kohler Arts Center. All students went on college campus tours – the freshmen toured MIAD where they learned about art programs and dual credit degrees; the sophomores toured UW Milwaukee which included a hands-on experience at the Peck School of the Arts; the juniors toured UW Madison and Edgewood College; the seniors got to pick which college they wanted to experience and go along with the other grade levels. The Wisconsin Youth Institute is an annual event on UW Madison's campus where high schoolers engage with local leaders and agriculture experts on critical global challenges, participate in hands-on activities, and explore meaningful ways to make a difference in Wisconsin and around the world – this year freshman Fiona Reilly (Eric Reilly's sister) and junior Anastasia Kuester were selected to participate after submission of an extensive research paper for their ecology and art science class. Students learn about the value of wild rice which only grows natively in Great Lakes regions. Values include wildlife, habitat, food, cultural value to the native people, and watershed quality. Students then have the opportunity to grow this rice in the classroom and monitor for scientific cause and effect. In May the students go to the Woodlands Dunes Nature Center and Preserve in Two Rivers to transplant the wild rice int a wetland ecosystem where it will hopefully thrive and reproduce, therefore helping to restore the local wetland habitats. The word "synecdoche" is a figure of speech which is the use the part of something to represent the whole of vice versa. As Wisconsin is considered a flyover state, purposeful examination reveals that it's actually a state full of rich rewarding opportunities and experiences captivating natural and human history. The "synecdoche" class looked beyond the cheese and cows to rethink our state together as the students created a final interactive Wisconsin experience that captured new ideas about the state. This included a field trip to Spring Green to tour Frank Lloyd Wright's historical Taliesin home and studios. The students left this field trip thinking creatively about The House on The Rock. Members of the conservation club and science interns were invited to participate in the water monitoring of the Pigeon River in the fall and spring of each year. The students collected water quality measurements of conductivity, pH, dissolved oxygen, temperature, stream flow, ammonia, nitrates, phosphorus. This information was collected and shared with UW Green Bay and uploaded to a publicly shared database as part of lower Fox River watershed monitoring program. The students were then invited to share their research and findings at the watershed symposium held at the UWGB campus. They learned from other students ranging from middle school through college as was as professors and leading experts in the topics of sustainability and conservation science. Mayball which is Etude's prom, was on Saturday, May 9 at Paradigm. Before the dance, dozens of students met at Etude to have their hair and makeup done and borrow dresses for the prom. Students rode the party bus around town and took photos before getting dropped off at the dance. The dance included live music from The Doorknobs, karaoke, and casino style games.

Mr. Derek DiBona, Warriner High School representative, shared that there are 27 seniors graduating from Warriner High School. Out of those seniors, four of them have earned technical college certificates, two have been involved in youth apprenticeships, two have been involved in youth co-ops, and three are receiving employability certificates. The seniors are having their awards banquet at the Sheboygan Yacht Club on May 27. National Honor Society just had their last meeting and several of them took a trip to Nourish Farms to volunteer and participate in gardening activities. On May 27 the whole school will be visiting Harbor Pointe mini golf and getting ice cream at South Pier Parlor as a celebration of the end of the school year. A school-wide picnic will be on June 3. The students recently had an art galley exhibition that was ocean themed and took place in the halls of the building. The Warriner PTO will be having a brat fry fundraiser at Festival Foods on May 30. There are four students who have been admitted to the Rising Phoenix program and will be part of the class of 2028.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

Dr. Konrath congratulated all of the students for wrapping up the end of the school year. He estimates that there will be nearly $5 million given away in scholarships. He was recently at the presidential awards for the fifth graders and he made a point to say to them that the high school seniors just received nearly $5 million in scholarships and oftentimes it's the same students who received the presidential award that will end up being the ones getting scholarships when they graduate. The Excellence in Education award winners were recently announced – this included Jennifer Boy (special education assistant at James Madison), Allison McKeone (teacher at Etude Elementary) and Hazel Dulmes (social worker at ELC) – congratulations to them. The Wisconsin Department of Instruction named Grant Elementary, Jackson Elementary, James Madison Elementary, and Wilson Elementary as Schools of Recognition. This award goes to schools that preform really well given the makeup of their student population. There were 95 schools recognized with this award and four of them are in SASD – congratulations to these schools. Graduation will be on June 7 at 1:00 pm at Vollrath Bowl. The Farnsworth and Urban groundbreaking will be on June 9 starting at 5:00 pm.
