

Welcome to Paso Verde School!

My name is Cassandra Wright (formerly Cassandra Poole), and I am honored to continue serving as the principal of Paso Verde School. As I enter my third year leading this remarkable community, I am filled with excitement and optimism for the year ahead.

Paso Verde is a special place because of the people who make up our community—our dedicated staff, engaged families, and incredible scholars. Over the past two years, we have worked together to strengthen our systems, improve student outcomes, and create a school culture where every scholar feels valued, supported, and challenged to achieve their best.

This year, our focus will be on strengthening our culture of accountability. Accountability is not about perfection; it is about ownership. It means following through on commitments, maintaining high expectations, supporting one another, and keeping scholar success at the center of every decision we make. As a school community, we all play a role in creating the conditions necessary for scholars to thrive, and I am confident that together we can continue to raise the bar for what is possible.

As we move forward, we will continue prioritizing academic excellence, positive school culture, meaningful relationships, and opportunities that prepare scholars to be successful both inside and outside the classroom. We will celebrate our successes, learn from our challenges, and remain committed to continuous growth.

I am grateful for the trust and partnership of our families and staff. Together, we will continue building a school where scholars are inspired to learn, empowered to lead, and prepared to make a positive impact on the world around them.

Thank you for being part of the Paso Verde community. I look forward to an incredible year of growth, achievement, and success.
