

Kellie Watts

Assistant Head of School

After earning a full academic merit scholarship to the Georgia Institute of Technology, Kellie graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering. She went on to achieve licensure as a professional engineer, building her career as a consultant before discovering her true calling in education. As an educator, Kellie has received honors such as Teacher of the Year and STAR Teacher. As an administrator, she brings together her engineering background, leadership and problem-solving skills, and passion for student growth to guide faculty and students alike.

Kellie treasures her family life and her faith. She and her husband, RV, have been married for 25 years and are the proud parents of three children: Ethan (UGA '24); Grace (UGA '26), and Will, a freshman at GWA. In her free time, she enjoys reading, solving puzzles, and spending time outdoors.
