Now & Then

Stephanie Hill, Kelsey Wilkins, and Cameron Matticks have a good laugh outside the Dean's office while completing their history homework.

Taylor Billeadeau, Ambrosia Smith, and Hannah Samuelson have a good laugh at funny images in the upper library in tenth grade. The upper library is the hangout for all the underclassmen.

ABOVE: Charley Bemis, Al Johnson, Zach Rice, and Bobby Plumber get their groove on while performing in the Lower School Rhythm and Dance Program. BELOW: Henry Moyers, Iman Jafri, and Allyson Amis hang out in the Senior Lounge and read the Rubicon. Both Moyers and Iman are on the Rubicon staff.

Andrew Bullard, Jada Wensman, Joanna Mendelsohn, Hannah Lodge, Jonny Socha, Samuel Dicke, Chase Butterworth, and Megan Davies enjoy in-school Halloween fun in ninth grade.

On the tenth Grade Service Retreat, Kira Snyder and Chapin Blanchard play with children at the Harriet Tubman Women's Shelter.

The necessary thing is after all but this solitude, great inner solitude. Going-into-oneself for hours meeting no one — this one must be able to attain. To be solitary, the way one was solitary as a child, when the grown-ups went around entangled with things that seemed important and big because the grown-ups looked so busy and because one comprehended nothing of their doings.

At the risk of being one of those fools who rush in where angels fear to tread, the present writer advances his conviction admittedly based on empirical grounds alone, that maximum occlusion of the bell with the hand shortens the air-column of any horn,irrespective of its basic length, by an amount equal to the length of a semitone valve loop tuned as for horn in F, that is about 8 1/2 inches, or 21.6 cm.
