What's New?

The middle school renovation continues to make steady progress as work advances throughout the building. Drywall patching, taping, and finishing are nearly complete in the library and the office areas, allowing crews to transition into the painting phase. Painting has begun in the library with a unique diagonal design, while the door and frames are also being painted to give the spaces a refreshed appearance. The skylight installation is nearly finished and only requires paint to be completed. In addition, crews continue replacing light fixtures and installing new heat pump systems throughout the school, with noticeable progress being made each week as the renovation moves towards its next phase.

DID YOU KNOW?

Skylights are carefully engineered to maximize natural daylight while maintaining a building's structural integrity and energy performance. Proper installation includes specialized flashing and weatherproofing systems that prevent water intrusion and help the building withstand changing weather conditions.
