1. Narrative description of the Prop 28 arts education program(s) funded. (2500 character limit).

At Mid Valley Charter School, Proposition 28 funding expanded access to high-quality arts education by providing students with meaningful opportunities to explore visual arts through hands-on learning, creative expression, and collaborative experiences. Prop 28 funds were used to purchase a variety of art supplies and materials that supported standards-aligned instruction across multiple grade levels. Students engaged in drawing, painting, and mixed-media projects that encouraged creativity, problem-solving, self-expression, and the development of artistic skills. These materials enabled students to explore different techniques and create original works of art that were shared with peers and displayed throughout the school. Funding also supported the purchase of flexible furniture designed to create collaborative learning spaces where students could work together, discuss artistic ideas, and participate in group critiques and art showcases. These spaces fostered communication, creativity, and peer collaboration while strengthening students' confidence in presenting and reflecting on their work. To enrich classroom instruction and connect students with professional artists and authentic arts experiences, students participated in educational field trips that exposed them to diverse art forms and creative processes. Students visited Ballis Glass, where they learned about the art and science of glassblowing and created their own glass pieces. Students also attended workshops at Good Dirt Pottery Studio, where they explored ceramic arts and gained hands-on experience working with clay. Through these experiences, Proposition 28 funding increased student access to visual arts education, strengthened community partnerships, and provided opportunities for students to develop creativity, collaboration, communication skills, and an appreciation for a variety of artistic disciplines.
