SPECIFIC CLASS OR ACADEMIC PERFORMANCE CONCERNS:

To help students build self-advocacy and problem-solving skills, we ask them to raise questions and concerns directly with their teachers first, turning to their advisor for support and coaching as needed. We recognize parents and caregivers as their daughter's primary educators and as partners in this work. Because we want students to build Courage and Confidence, we hold them accountable for leading these conversations. If more follow-up is needed, parents/caregivers should contact the relevant teacher first, then the advisor.
