TEACHING TOGETHER: THE ONE APPROACH THAT CHANGES EVERYTHING

DESCRIPTION

When two talented adults are in the same classroom, there is a great opportunity to provide all students with learning experiences that are drastically different and better than a one-teacher classroom.

During this session, John O'Connor will describe instructional practices where every student participates in many more attempts and receives differentiated, targeted feedback. He will also share ideas about developing full co-ownership between the teachers and full belonging for all students.

This coaching session is designed for Support Facilitators, ideally in collaboration with their co-teacher if possible.
