Parent Communication

Parent Square and email are the best way to start communication. If a phone conversation is preferred, please use these channels to schedule a time.

HOW THEATRE SUPPORTS STUDENT GROWTH

Students will explore different points of view by developing characters and performing scenes that reflect a variety of life experiences.

Students will practice creative problem-solving by making thoughtful choices in performance, staging, and collaboration..

Students will improve attention to detail by analyzing scripts and performances for meaning, tone, and emotion.

Students will strengthen communication skills by expressing ideas and emotions through voice, movement, and facial expression.

Students will build discipline and perseverance by revising their work through rehearsal, reflection, and constructive feedback.

Students will grow in confidence by performing in front of others and working as part of a supportive ensemble

Students will learn to collaborate effectively by working in groups to plan, rehearse, and perform scenes and projects

Participation

This class is based on participation. If you do not participate positively, you may not pass this class. All students in this class will participate in individual and group presentations for their class peers. Our goal is to create a trusted environment so we all feel comfortable performing.

The majority of work in this class happens during class time. Make-up work due to absences may need to be altered in order to earn the grades necessary for the class since in-class experiences are not easily duplicated. Make-up assignments are typically in Canvas and are the responsibility of the student to complete upon return.

Maintain a safe environment

In our class environment, negativity towards one's self or others will not be tolerated. This class is a brave place where self-expression is being discovered. We all make mistakes; we all learn from them and this class should be an accommodating environment to do that. Anyone who disrupts this process will receive consequences.

Collaboration

Take responsibility for keeping up with your part of the process. In order for this class to be successful, we must work together as a team. If work is left undone, it effects the rest of our process.

Prepare something you're proud of and you will be successful.
