Reading Approach at Eagle Hill School

Reading can be a challenge for many students, especially those with dyslexia and other language-based learning differences. At Eagle Hill School, we meet that challenge with proven, individualized instruction.

Each student receives daily reading instruction that is personalized, consistent, and grounded in research-based methods.

We use multiple reading approaches designed specifically for students with dyslexia, including Orton-Gillingham, Wilson Reading System, and EBLI (Evidence-Based Literacy Instruction).

At Eagle Hill School, we also work with students who have difficulty with comprehension.

Teachers help students break down texts, identify key ideas, and build vocabulary and critical thinking skills. Fluency is also key to our instruction.

Through guided practice, students improve their accuracy, pacing, and confidence when reading aloud. With the right support, we believe every student can succeed.

At Eagle Hill, we're ready to help.
