STUDENT SUCCESS STORY

Even in darkness, there is eventually light. At 36 years old, I can say with confidence that I have faced deep adversity—and I am still standing.

I am the child of immigrant parents and grew up in a home marked by instability, separation, and abuse. From an early age, I experienced trauma and hardship that deeply affected my sense of self. Despite academic potential, I struggled through constant school changes, eventually attending 15 schools by age sixteen. Homelessness and survival needs often took priority over education, and I faced additional challenges, including an abusive relationship and periods of substance use and self-harm as I tried to cope with overwhelming pain.

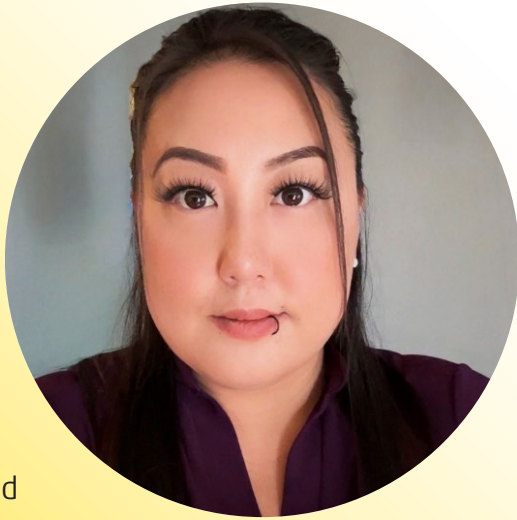

In 2020, I made the life-changing decision to leave that environment and start over. With the support of my partner and children, I began rebuilding my life, my confidence, and my sense of purpose. Although I later experienced the loss of my father, I also found strength in the love of my family and my determination to change my future.

Resilience defines who I am today. After 18 years away from school, I returned and earned my GED in just one month—proof that my past does not define my future. I am now pursuing nursing because I want to be the person I once needed: someone who brings compassion, strength, and hope to others in their most difficult moments.

With continued education, I am committed to becoming a Registered Nurse. I understand the financial and academic demands ahead, but I am prepared to meet them with discipline and determination. As a mother of four and sole provider, my motivation is clear: to create a stable future for my children and lead by example through perseverance and growth.

My journey has not been easy, but it has prepared me to succeed—and to make a meaningful difference in the lives of others

STUDENT SUCCESS STORY

My name is Faviola Jimenez Garcia, and my educational journey has been nontraditional, but it has shaped me into a determined, resilient, and goal-driven adult learner. I was born in San Francisco, but from ages 11 to 22, I lived in Mexico, where limited financial resources and life circumstances made school challenging. During that time, I also witnessed my parents' strong work ethic—my father worked hard to provide for our needs, and my mother, a dedicated housewife, also sold items at a swap meet on weekends, where I helped her. Their example taught me the value of hard work and perseverance.

When I returned to the United States as an adult, I entered the workforce right away to support myself and my family. As the oldest of three siblings, I have always carried a strong sense of responsibility. Although my parents completed only middle and elementary school, their sacrifices motivated me to pursue opportunities they did not have.

For several years, I worked in a warehouse job that helped me develop discipline, teamwork, and persistence. However, I knew I wanted more for my future, something that would allow me to express my creativity and make a positive impact. This inspired me to return to school and pursue my GED while continuing to work. It has not been easy, but every step forward has shown me that it is never too late to change your path.

My long-term goal is to study culinary arts and eventually open my own catering business. Baking has always been my passion—a way to share my culture, connect with others, and bring joy to people. I hope to combine my life experiences with professional training to build a career that provides stability for my family and contributes to my community, while also creating opportunities for others working toward a better life.

STUDENT SUCCESS STORY

My name is Jianbo Chang. I am from China. I was an engineer for 40 years before I came to America. At the end of last year, I was glad to have an opportunity to learn English at Inland Career Education Center.

When I started the first class in January this year, I could not understand what the teacher said at the beginning. I was afraid of speaking in class. I organized the words, phrases, and sentences from the native-speaking teachers and the grammar through small group talking. I practiced my oral speaking and sentence dictation.

Through the textbooks, I became familiar with the civics content and also learned a lot about American culture in class. I learned more idioms and common phrases in English and participated in listening activities.

After studying for five months in an ESL class, I made significant progress in reading, listening, and speaking. My test scores rose from the beginning of the class to the final test.

At the same time, I attended classes in the Academic GED program at Inland Career Education Center. I passed the Math, Science, and Social Studies GED tests.

I have enrolled in the Billing and Coding program at San Bernardino Valley College. I plan to pass the GED Language Arts test this year and apply for a job as a coder after I earn my certificate from Valley College.
