Assisted Living Facilities

ADRC
Aging and Disability Resource Center
of Dodge County

Assisted living facilities provide supportive housing for adults who need help with daily activities but not nursing home care. Wisconsin licenses and certifies these facilities, though not all qualify for long-term care program funding. The Aging and Disability Resource Center of Dodge County can help you find facilities that do.

Assisted living facilities include several types of supportive housing options. Adult Family Homes (AFHs) provide care in small, home-like settings for a few residents. Community-Based Residential Facilities (CBRFs) offer a larger, more structured environment with daily support services. Residential Care Apartment Complexes (RCACs) provide apartment-style living with supportive services that promote independence. The list below features CBRFs unless noted as an RCAC or AFH.
