

New CEO, Chief of Staff Appointed at Monique Burr Foundation

A pair of new appointments is reshaping the leadership of the Monique Burr Foundation for Children.

Just weeks after Ashley Garrett was appointed the new chief executive officer of the foundation, Mary Anne Tuohy Jolly was appointed chief of staff.

Formerly serving as the foundation's vice president of prevention education, Garrett has built a career of nearly 30 years around the conviction that every child deserves to feel safe, valued and protected. Before joining MBF, Garrett served as the human trafficking practice lead for ICF. She was the founding director of the National Human Trafficking Training and Technical Assistance Center for the Office on Trafficking in Persons in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Jolly brings 15 years of management experience to this role, previously serving as chief of staff to Jacksonville University's senior vice president of external affairs. In this new role at MBF, Jolly will provide strategic direction, operational oversight, and coordination of MBF's external relationships throughout the state, while providing enterprise-level leadership and serving as a liaison with MBF leadership and staff.
