A Note From Mr. Allen

Becoming a Self-Directed Learner

A core pillar of our Graduate Profile is developing self-directed learners. A self-directed learner is an individual who takes initiative, makes decisions, and guides their own actions. Being self-directed doesn't mean doing everything alone; it means recognizing when you need extra help and taking the lead to get it.

Taking Advantage of Our Supports

We encourage students to advocate for themselves early and often by using our on-campus resources:

- Flex Period: Dedicated school-day time to drop in for extra help and clarify tough concepts.
- Math Resource Room: A great spot to review for assessments, get homework help, or build foundational skills.
- Teacher Outreach: Encouraging students to email their teachers directly builds incredible self-advocacy and problem-solving skills.

Supporting at Home

If your child feels stuck, you can help by asking, "What's your plan to reach out to your teacher or visit Flex this week?" Guiding them to take that first step builds lifelong confidence.

Let's work together to make this year collaborative, empowering, and successful. Here's to a strong start!

A Note From Mrs. Jeskie

Attendance (Li-Z)

At DPHS, we know that every school day provides valuable opportunities for students to learn, build relationships, and stay connected to teachers and peers. Regular attendance is one of the strongest predictors of academic success and helps students develop the habits that prepare them for college, careers, and life beyond high school. We understand that there are times when students and families face challenges that can impact attendance. If your student is experiencing difficulties, I encourage you to reach out to our office for support. Together, we can identify supports and resources to help your student stay engaged and successful.

September
is Important!

Did you know that absenteeism in the first month of school can predict poor attendance throughout the school year?

Students who missed 2 to 4 days in September were 5 times more likely than those who missed fewer than 2 days to be chronically absent for the year.

Students who missed fewer than 2 days in September continued to average fewer than 2 days absent each month.
