OVERBROOK
SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND

...OVERBROOK SCHOOL # 6 11...

MISSION

To develop and deliver education that enhances the options available for persons with visual impairments, including those with additional challenges, so that they have the greatest opportunity to experience active and fulfilling lives

VISION

To inspire individuals with visual impairment, including those with additional challenges, to achieve their highest potential, to share our culture that embraces their abilities; to be a dynamic and leading organization; and to use our expertise to positively influence our students, families, partners and peers, regionally, nationally and internationally

From Board of Trustees President Lyle T. Sine

Dear Friends,

Over the past few months, as I've stepped into the role of Interim Executive Director, I've gained an even deeper insight and appreciation of what we do at Overbrook School for the Blind—and I continue to be inspired every single day.

What stands out most is the unwavering commitment of our staff. Everyone is a team player. Everyone treats this school like family. No matter the challenge, every effort is made to maximize the experience of our students. It's about giving—giving time, giving care and giving every student the tools they need to thrive.

With your support, OSB is becoming a national leader in educating children with cerebral/cortical visual impairment. This year, 77 percent of our new students arrived with this diagnosis and are now receiving the specialized care they deserve. We're also celebrating new steps toward independence: fourteen students earned their first paychecks through job coaching while others gained recognition through awards for leadership and creativity.

This year has also been one of growth and renewal on our campus. From the restoration of our historic entryway to the redesign of classrooms with cutting-edge educational technology, we are creating learning environments that reflect both our tradition and our future. Most notably, the new Rosenblatt Family CVI Center is already making a profound difference for our students.

As a former OSB student myself, I see these changes with deep gratitude. Learning to type here in seventh and eighth grade opened the door to my entire career—I could never have walked into Verizon without that skill. Today, I'm equally amazed at what our students are learning and achieving. Recently, I watched Braille signage created by our students being installed outside our offices—beautifully precise, thoughtfully spaced and entirely their own work. It's moments like these that remind me of the power of opportunity.

Thank you for believing in our mission, for standing alongside us and for helping our students learn, grow and shine. Together, we are not just meeting the needs of today, but opening doors to a brighter tomorrow for every student at Overbrook.

With gratitude,

From Executive Director & CEO Todd Reeves

Overbrook Community,

At Overbrook School for the Blind, we witness courage in action every day. Our students approach challenges fearlessly—whether they are mastering new mobility routes, exploring artistic expression or taking the field with confidence. Their determination reminds us that true strength lies not in avoiding obstacles, but in facing them with creativity, optimism and resilience.

OSB is deeply committed to providing each student with a balanced and fulfilling educational experience. From rigorous academics to vibrant arts programs and inclusive athletics, we ensure that every learner has the opportunity to develop intellectually, socially and physically. This well-rounded approach reflects our belief that education extends beyond the classroom—it shapes character, builds confidence and prepares our students for life.

Our mission is strengthened by the many partnerships that connect us to the broader community. Whether through universities, hospitals, cultural organizations or local businesses, these collaborations expand opportunities for our students and foster greater understanding of the limitless potential of individuals with visual impairments.

As we reflect on another year of progress and purpose, I am deeply grateful to our dedicated staff, families, partners and supporters who make this work possible. Together, we continue to advance a legacy of inclusion, innovation and empowerment that has defined Overbrook for nearly two centuries.

Sincerely,

From Director of Development & Communications
Pamela Vasserman

Dear Friends,

It is with great pride and gratitude that I share this year's Annual Report on behalf of the Overbrook School for the Blind. Each page reflects the extraordinary commitment of our community—students, families, staff, alumni, trustees and supporters—who together ensure that Overbrook continues to be a place where every individual has the opportunity to learn, thrive and take flight.

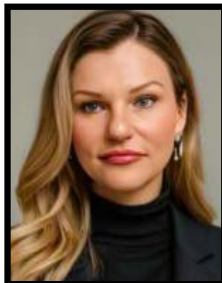

This past year has been a remarkable one. We celebrated milestones in student achievement, expanded programming to meet the growing needs of children with visual impairments and additional challenges, and advanced bold initiatives that will shape the future of our school. Highlights include the continued progress of our Taking Flight campaign, the opening of transformative learning spaces and the launch of innovative programs that prepare our students for independence, confidence and lifelong success.

Behind every achievement is the generosity of our donors and partners. Your belief in our mission allows us to provide cutting-edge technology, world-class teaching and experiences that empower our students to reach their full potential. Whether supporting critical classroom tools, groundbreaking research in CVI or opportunities that open doors for career readiness, your investment is changing lives every day.

As we look ahead, we are inspired by the legacy of nearly two centuries of impact and the exciting vision for our bicentennial in 2032. Together, we will continue to honor our history while boldly pursuing innovation that ensures Overbrook remains a leader in education for students who are blind or visually impaired.

Thank you for walking beside us on this journey. With your support, our students are not only imagining the future—they are building it.

With gratitude,

HIGHLIGHTS

Dr. Ramella shares OSB's mission overseas

OSB Superintendent Dr. Beth Ramella is a prominent voice in the evolving efforts to diagnose and design educational strategies for children with CVI. This year, Dr. Ramella traveled to southeast Asia to support international outreach efforts and deliver a presentation at the 5th World Congress of Pediatric Ophthalmology and Strabismus conference in Kuala Lumpur. Ramella addressed more than 100 medical professionals at the conference – a group that included pediatric ophthalmologists, general ophthalmologists, optometrists and orthoptists. “It was an awesome and humbling experience,” she said.

OSB Students Test New Device at World Cup Match

OSB Secondary students, accompanied by educators from the school, used an innovative technology to experience a recent World Cup Club match played at Lincoln Financial Field. The technology includes a board with a small magnetic ring that represents the ball and moves about the simulated pitch. There is an option to add audio commentary along with a haptic language that communicates different plays and outcomes with unique vibrations. The user knows almost immediately whether there's been a pass or a tackle and whether a shot sailed wide or found its mark.

Students build technical skills via Braille Signage

Under the guidance of Braille Signage Specialist Pat Blocher, secondary students use a specialized printer that produces both flat and tactile graphics including Braille. As part of a year-long campus signage project, these students learned technical skills such as setting printer height, loading materials and understanding how ultraviolet light cures ink to create raised braille lettering. The activity reinforced precision, problem-solving and attention to detail – real-world outcomes that showcase the students' growing technical and vocational skills – while contributing new signs for the Touch Garden.

Philadelphia City Council's Nina Ahmad visits OSB's Pancake Breakfast

Several local dignitaries including Councilmember Nina Ahmad attended the annual Pancake Breakfast. Ahmad has taken a keen interest in OSB since her visit, helping to increase the school's visibility and prominence. Ahmad posed for a photo at Pancake Breakfast with OSB Board President Lyle Sine and Director of Development & Communications Pamela Vasserman.

Musical magic with Kasey MacAdams

OSB students practiced and performed concerts in the winter and spring, contributing to each concert in various ways from drumming on a plastic bucket to playing piano or singing. MacAdams does a masterful job of tailoring each student's talents and abilities to the overall production, leaving all in attendance feeling inspired and enthralled.

From CVI to independence

CVI involves unique learning needs and strengths. For STRIDE student Aeryn, this includes uneven responses to sensory input ranging from hearing loss to heightened sensitivity. A longtime OSB student who finished in 2025, Aeryn developed independence and task-focused skills using CVI-specific strategies like collecting recyclables, folding towels, organizing supplies or helping at the Kappen Aquatics Center. "She's a superstar," said Dr. Ramella. "Watching Aeryn grow and develop into a capable young woman over the last few years has been an honor and a privilege."

Celebrating resilience and hope every step of the way

At every level, OSB graduations are celebrations of courage, determination and growth. For our students, this moment represents not only academic success but also the triumph of spirit. Each graduate has faced challenges with strength and perseverance, turning obstacles into stepping stones on the path toward independence and self-confidence. Every journey is different, yet all share a common thread — resilience.

Advancing AmeriCorps' vision

This year, 17 OSB AmeriCorps members supported 27 students through weekly work-readiness lessons, one-on-one mentoring and virtual activities connecting peers across Pennsylvania to strengthen their job skills. New initiatives including the First Step Skills for younger students and the Future Leaders Academy for college participants advanced the vision of a community where blind and visually impaired youth see themselves as the future.

March Madness at OSB

In a nod to the NCAA Basketball Tournament, the OSB Primary Department organized its own March Madness. Students from each class faced off against each other in a basketball shooting contest, with each winner advancing until a champion was crowned. Teacher Lee Stough and his class added a little something extra, as he and a student co-hosted an Invitation Show announcing the impending matchups between their class and Chiara Jacketti's as classmates whooped it up.

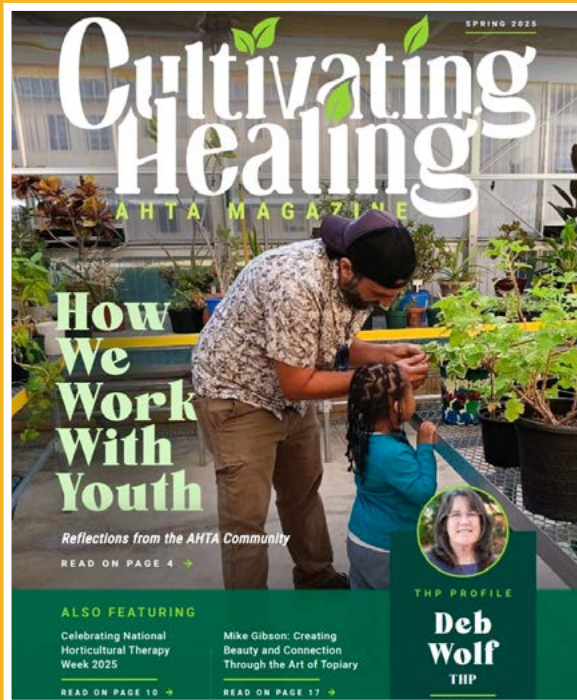

STRIDE students meet guide dogs

As part of OSB's commitment to expanding students' Orientation and Mobility skills, four members of the community were introduced to guide dog training along the walkways near White Hall and the orchard. Organized by Certified Orientation and Mobility Specialist Christine Wozniak, the session offered hands-on experience in working with a guide dog – an important next step beyond traditional cane travel. Danielle Cuenoud of Guiding Eyes for the Blind shared how using a guide dog offers a new sense of independence and confidence. Guiding Eyes, a nonprofit based in Yorktown Heights, N.Y., provides fully trained guide dogs at no cost to qualified individuals.

OSB athletics score big

OSB fielded boy's and girl's teams in track, goal ball and swimming in the 2024-25 school year. The EAAB Swim Tournament was once again held at the Kappen Aquatic Center and a full house cheered on our student swimmers! Participating schools included The New York Institute for Special Education (formerly The New York Institute for The Blind) and The West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and Blind. The OSB girl's and boy's swim teams each placed second in the meet. Additionally, the boy's team received the 2024 Sportsmanship Award.

OSB Horticultural Therapy earns national spotlight

Rich Matteo was featured in the Spring 2025 edition of American Horticultural Therapy Association's quarterly magazine, garnering the cover photo in addition to a profile. This year, Rich and his students also won three awards at the Philadelphia Flower Show. The entries marked the school's first presence in the show's juried displays. Matteo described the experience as "an exciting opportunity – not about winning, but about increasing visibility for our institution and my profession."

OSB installs new student-led mosaic

Students are collaborating with Main Line Art Center and art teacher Susan DiFabio (TVI) to create two large mosaics that will brighten the school's lobby. Students are learning techniques such as cutting, rolling and etching tiles under expert guidance. When completed, the piece will stand up to six feet tall and span up to four feet wide – an enduring artwork showcasing creativity, collaboration and OSB pride.

Could you tell us a little about yourself and your background?

I ran an environmental consulting business for 25 years, retired, then got involved with education in Cambodia, building three schools in a rural area. I am also a lifelong artist and love anything to do with educating young people.

How did you first learn about Overbrook School for the Blind (OSB)?

Board member Rick Wheeler cornered me and encouraged me to come for a visit. His enthusiasm is contagious and it rubbed off on me.

We met years before when our kids went to the same school.

What inspired you to become involved with OSB?

Overbrook is such a special place. I see the earnest love of learning and happiness that comes from it. Overbrook delivers this to children who would otherwise be on the sidelines.

What is one of your favorite memories or experiences with OSB?

Going to my first Holiday Concert was mindblowing. The students are thrilled and give their all to the music.

Is there a particular aspect of OSB's mission or programs that resonates most with you?

It all is woven together and hard to tease out anything in particular. I am constantly amazed by the learning and athletic challenges they are given and that they invariably rise to give their best.

What motivates you to give to organizations like OSB?

Like most schools, OSB needs money to develop new programs such as the CVI clinic. There are a number of initiatives that we have that we are raising money for including a student run Airbnb and producing braille signage for use in public institutions.

How does your support of OSB align with your personal or family values?

I am lucky to come from a family that values education and service to others. It is quite literally part of my DNA.

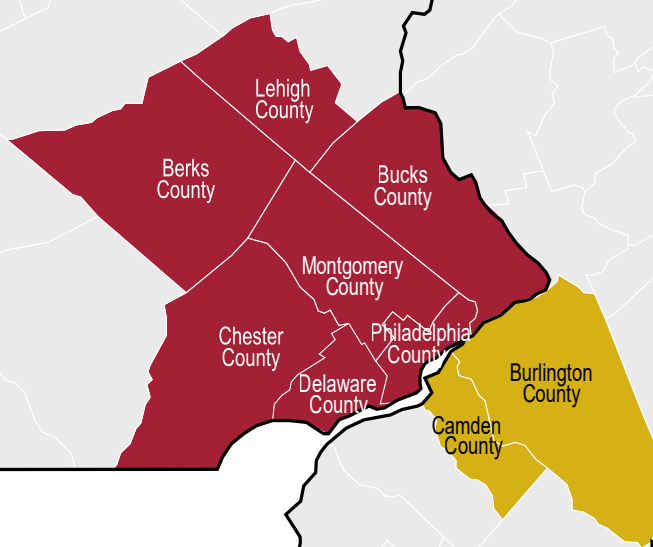

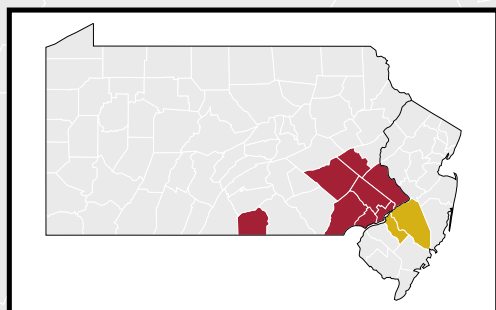

What would you say to someone considering a gift to OSB for the first time?

Your gift will create more possibilities for students to fulfill their potential and become an integral part of our culture. It will be an immeasurable addition to each student's self esteem.

You've supported OSB through the Taking Flight campaign — what inspired you to invest in this transformative initiative?

The initiatives are so compelling and will have a dramatic effect on the future of visually impaired children. It is a long term investment in the future. These initiatives will help them become more independent and skillful in the world. It will help them fulfill their potential as human beings.

OSB's footprint spans 2 states, 10 counties and 57 school districts. Plus, international ties connect OSB to Southeast Asia and more.
