Technology & Student Media Use Opt-Out Form

Complete this form only if you want to revoke your student's access to BUUSD technology resources or restrict any media of your student for publication.

The District has determined that technology is essential in classroom instruction as it allows greater opportunities for student-centered learning, and students can learn at their own pace. The District has invested in technology for students and teachers. For example, all students have a one-to-one device for daily use in the classroom and at home, depending on the student's grade. Technology is used in the District's daily operations in the classroom in many ways, including technology-integrated instruction, computer-based assessments, research, online curriculum options, collaboration, and other online resources.

Technology helps to prepare students for future education and employment opportunities. Technology enables students to have access to unlimited research materials. Technology gives teachers access to unlimited resources designed to engage and motivate students, such as online curriculum content with embedded video and other engaging features.

The District is committed to using technology responsibly to enhance the education of its students. A parent or guardian can prohibit their child from the use of technology and the internet while at school to the extent that the technology is not a part of the school's daily operations. In other words, a parent or guardian may prohibit their child from using technology or the internet at school for non-instructional searches or free computer time.

Exercising this right will not prevent the student from receiving computer-based instruction or taking assessments using a computer as part of the District's daily operations. A parent or guardian may exercise this right by initialing the statement below, signing this opt-out form, and returning it to your child's school. A separate form must be filed for each child if you have multiple children.
