Commit Yourself to Being an Explorer for Life

As I write these words to you, I am sitting on a plane bound for Dallas from Hong Kong, over 11 hours in, a bit more than three to go. The flight was preceded by a 3½ hour journey from Singapore to Hong Kong and will be followed by the about equally long trip home from DFW. It's not easy. But it's so worth it if you want to see things, have experiences, and, most importantly, meet people you never otherwise will.

The same is true of your choice to become a La Salle College High School Explorer. You could have made a less demanding, more conventional, more unexceptional choice of where you might spend the next for years. You could not have made a more rewarding one, one more impactful for the man you will become, on the life you will lead. Welcome to the La Salle College High School Explorer family. Let the journey begin!

La Salle was never meant to be a place that we attended school, but a place where we we were formed into men who show up for one another.

CHOOSE YOUR PATH

For more than 150 years, La Salle College High School has navigated and thrived in a rapidly changing world. And while we've adapted, we have never wavered in our dedication to the charge given to us by Saint John Baptist de La Salle: "Prepare a path for God so that God can enter your heart."

It's from that mission that we define our approach to education. Beginning with a foundation in the Catholic Christian faith and the example set out by Saint La Salle, we believe that each person's path is unique and requires individual attention and care.

La Salle College High School is, therefore, a learning community in which young men of all faiths, backgrounds, interests, and beliefs – young men just like yourself – are invited to find lifelong brotherhood and to discover and Choose Your Path. We present education as a journey that offers opportunities for healthy growth and development. It's about learning how to think, how to approach a search for truth, and, ultimately, how to create a life that is worth living, whatever your talents and interests might be.

So, we invite you to explore your curiosity with us. We invite you to join us and excel in the classroom, on the sporting field, in the lab, on the stage, in the studio, or on a canvas. We make it our mission to ensure that every young man who attends La Salle has equal opportunity to take risks and to grow. We invite you to discover what inspires you and to Choose Your Path.

LASALLIAN EDUCATION GOALS

La Salle College High School is a community where students are taught to make use of their freedom and to overcome prejudices, ready-made ideas, and social pressures. These young men are encouraged to listen, seek, understand, trust, love, respect, and contemplate – all to develop in the image of God and follow in the footsteps of Saint John Baptist de La Salle.

1 We instill Gospel values.

At the center of the school's logo and identity is the cross; a constant reminder of Jesus' presence in our life. At the beginning of each school day and class period, students and faculty begin by remembering, "THAT WE ARE IN THE HOLY PRESENCE OF GOD." This simple reminder sets the tone and allows our community to reflect on the Gospel values in our lives.

2 We are animated by and foster a spirit of faith and zeal.

La Salle students serve in our community and demonstrate their faith daily. Some provide tutoring to younger students, while others visit the elderly or provide meals to the homeless. In the summer, scores of students spend a week serving communities in need across the country.

3 We develop and maintain diverse programs of excellence.

While the academic program at La Salle is anchored in rigor and relevance, it is also reflective of the times and flexible enough to accommodate students with diverse interests and from varied academic backgrounds. Teachers hold high standards, and adapt their instruction to the needs of today's students.

4 We create and sustain respectful human relationships in community.

Throughout La Salle, there is a subtle emphasis on mutual respect that is exemplified in the teacher-student relationship. Students are exposed to a faculty that respects them for who they are as individuals. They enter classrooms where they are both challenged and made to feel comfortable. The student sees his teacher as someone who cares about him as a student and, more importantly, as a person.

5 We offer financial aid for those in need.

La Salle is committed to families who require need-based financial aid, which affords students the opportunity, gained through admission, to attend La Salle College High School. Today, over one-third of La Salle students are receiving need-based financial aid and the budget for financial aid has risen significantly, requiring strong commitments from the entire La Salle community.

AN EDUCATION WHERE THE PATH BEGINS WITH YOU

It has been said that education is not the filling of a cup but the lighting of fire. At La Salle College High School, you'll experience teachers, mentors, coaches, artists, scientists, futurists, and fellow students who will ignite the flame. You will carry it, forging your own path based on your unique mix of interests and skills.

We are nationally recognized for a rigorous curriculum that can catapult you to academic success and your college of choice. Yet we are more than that. We are a living, breathing community of scholars. This gets at the La Salle difference. We walk along the path together, and on it you'll be inspired, motivated, challenged, pushed, and supported. Here we enter to learn from each other, make mistakes, and ultimately develop you as someone who can truly think for yourself.

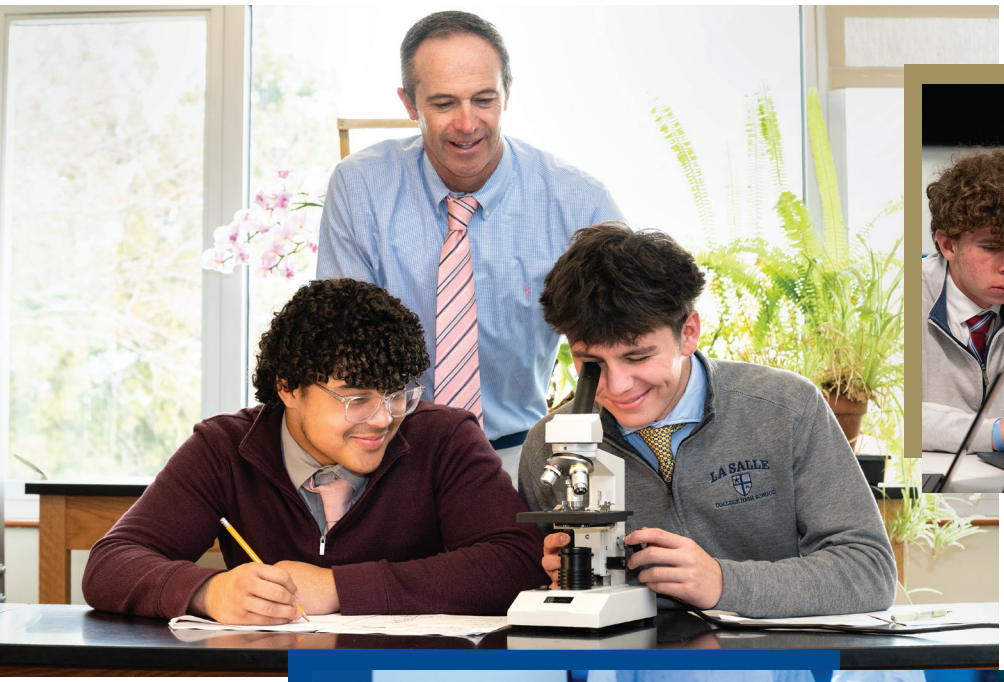

It's a path rich in outcomes. You will be academically prepared for what's next. You will have the confidence and skills to communicate with clarity and power. You will be equipped to operate in the world of ideas. You will have a knack for creating. You will compete and win. You will lead and serve. In this way, when you Choose Your Path, you are choosing to develop your mind in ways that will accelerate your ability to excel, find your passion, and pursue a life rich in meaning and fulfillment.

In true Explorer fashion, three constants have defined Amar Stukes' life: family, basketball, and an unwavering commitment to Lasallian values. A proud graduate of La Salle College High School and La Salle University, Amar has come full circle by returning to his alma mater, where he now serves as a teacher, coach, mentor, and role model for the next generation of Explorers.

As a standout student-athlete, Amar earned the attention of several collegiate basketball programs before choosing to continue his academic and athletic career at La Salle University. While his accomplishments on the court were impressive, it was his character, humility, and leadership that distinguished him most. Those same qualities continue to define his work in education today.

In the classroom, Amar has become a trusted and respected educator who possesses a unique ability to connect with students from all backgrounds. His authenticity, compassion, and approachable nature allow him to build meaningful relationships that extend beyond academics. Students see him not only as a teacher, but also as a mentor who listens, encourages, and inspires them to become the best versions of themselves. He understands the challenges young people face because he once walked the same halls, making him a relatable and influential presence within the La Salle community.

Amar's passion for education is rooted in a genuine love of lifelong learning. He continually seeks opportunities to grow professionally and personally, recognizing that the best educators are always learning alongside their students. His curiosity, openness to new ideas, and commitment to self-improvement model the growth mindset he encourages in every student he teaches.

Whether collaborating with fellow faculty members, supporting school initiatives, coaching, or mentoring students, Amar exemplifies what it means to be the ultimate team player. He is always willing to step in where needed, celebrate the accomplishments of others, and place the success of the community above individual recognition. His humility, dependability, and servant leadership embody the Lasallian tradition of faith, service, and community.

Amar's journey — from student to collegiate athlete to educator at his alma mater— is a testament to the lasting impact of a Lasallian education. Through his outstanding character, unwavering integrity, dedication to lifelong learning, and extraordinary ability to inspire and relate to students, he continues to make a profound difference in the lives of those around him while strengthening the La Salle community he has proudly called home for so many years.

COORDINATOR, GLOBAL BUSINESS CONCENTRATION

GROUNDED IN POSSIBILITY

CONCENTRATIONS PROGRAM

The Concentrations Program at La Salle College High School takes learning to another level and allows students to embark on an innovative journey where they can experience various career fields and earn credentials during their high school years. By navigating a pathway through elective classes, clubs, and experiential learning activities as well as linked course content, interviews, service-learning opportunities, and independent research, La Salle students gain unparalleled academic and real-world insights. These customized pathways will enable these young men to discover and pursue their passions. As a result, connections will be made across subject areas and deeper more meaningful learning will take place.

A student in our program can expect to work on and off campus connecting his experiences in pursuit of his goals and the deepest levels of understanding. Students in a concentration will take senior seminar courses, create professional portfolios, and complete capstone projects. This rigorous experience will serve students in a variety of ways, but most importantly, will facilitate the development of the skills, habits, work ethic, and character needed in our world today. In addition, the Concentrations Program will help an individual to decipher if these fields are potential college majors or career options for him and inspire him to learn more and do more with that knowledge.

By packaging current course offerings to create curricular pathways, La Salle currently offers concentrations in:

Digital Media and Communication

Engineering

Global Business

Health Sciences

IT Professional

Music Production

Leadership, Public Service, and Law

The benefit of the program is that when young men do not have a reason, goal or a target, they can lose focus, be adrift, or not apply themselves. Students do not always have the long view, the sense of relevance, or the reason for learning a subject. Students often miss the learning links in front of them and connections that can be made. These concentrations give a young man a purpose and reason. Classes now matter to a student, and the long view comes into focus. Connections are made across subject areas and deeper more meaningful learning takes place.

Over a three-year period, basic courses would be taken first, with electives to follow. By senior year, students will take a seminar course to build portfolios and even be engaged in a capstone project, culminating in a presentation, recognition, and certification. Importantly, students can choose to specialize in one of these areas or take electives in multiple areas. Many students decide to pursue additional electives amongst our 27 AP classes.

La Salle has prepared me for college through the challenging courses that I was able to take. Additionally, the IT Professional concentration allowed me to take a deep dive into the field of Information Technology and inspired my major in college.

Ryan Thomas McCabe '26
Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute

Rensselaer

The genesis of the program was inspired internally and from what colleges and workplaces will be asking of students. The program is open to all students, will deepen their understanding, and force them to grow in multiple dimensions as students and young men. It has inspired La Salle's faculty and administration to look at its curriculum with new eyes, seeking more points of connection and relevancy.

Participation in a concentration will provide a capable young man a spark, the spark that will ignite a new level of effort, thought, and commitment. It is not easy to develop expertise, but the concentrations program will allow students to explore opportunities and pursue their passion.

While the organization of the program formalizes pathways, students will ultimately find their own paths from what they learn and experience. The program aims to honor and encourage those pathways and recognize those students who are motivated to complete their concentrations journey.

SILENT NIGHT

Silent Night at La Salle College High School dates back to 2012 when La Salle defeated Father Judge 59-41 in a home playoff game. Nearly 300 students dressed in costumes and remained silent until the Explorers scored their tenth point, and then went berserk and maintained high-energy for the remainder of the game. As the final seconds melted away, the students sang "Silent Night." Borrowing the idea from Taylor University in Indiana, La Salle added their touch to what has become a highly anticipated yearly tradition. Over 500 students pack the stands opposite the team benches allowing the student body to be the ultimate "sixth man." The costumes are creative, the energy is electric, and the brotherhood is infectious.

La Salle College High School is a Catholic ministry that develops each young man to his fullest potential – intellectually, spiritually, socially, and physically.

No matter how your path unfolds at La Salle, you will encounter moments that invite you into faith and service. Here, you will experience firsthand that the word "faith" is a verb – something to be lived among your brothers and the world. You will receive the opportunity to worship as an expression of that faith.

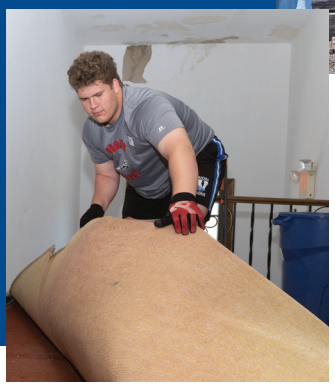

Service is also an integral part of your La Salle education. Through it, you will learn the value of giving back. You will discover the interconnectedness of the global community. You will learn the deep satisfaction of making just an injustice. You will have the freedom to create and activate a response to issues and problems that plague communities locally and worldwide.

At La Salle, we see the world not only as an on-ramp to ambition and success, but also as a gateway into helping and serving others. We believe it's yet another education wherein the soul connects to the mind, awakening your whole person.

La Salle has taught me the importance of living my faith through service. Through countless service opportunities, I have learned how small actions can make great impacts. The more you serve, the less it feels like a chore; and it becomes something you enjoy doing.

The Office of Lasallian Mission and Ministry seeks to build a living faith community by providing religious experiences and service opportunities for both students and faculty.

During the summer of 2026, nearly 300 rising juniors and seniors participated in one of seventeen voluntary summer service projects located in eleven states and three countries.

Liturgical programs are celebrated at significant times throughout the year. A yearly retreat program is organized and conducted by the Office of Lasallian Mission and Ministry and assisted by many faculty members and student leaders. Rooted in the spiritual and educational vision of Saint John Baptist de La Salle, La Salle empowers students to serve those in need.

CHARACTER AND BROTHERHOOD

Brotherhood is a bond forged in shared experience and strengthened by time.

The La Salle experience is marked by a sense that in our halls, you matter. Everyone matters. This leads to a deeper calling and expectation of you as an individual and a member of our community, and it's powerful.

It is then embodied by all who are privileged to learn within our halls: our student body. We are brothers who are driven by equality. We are brothers who celebrate together. We are brothers who support each other when school or life becomes hard. We are brothers who are there in victory and defeat. We are brothers who confront each other respectfully when we have a problem. It's a high standard, and when we hold each other to it, it creates an amazing environment that our students love and thrive within. It doesn't stop at school. It moves further out into the world. As a member of the La Salle brotherhood, you are marked by your openness, joy, love of life, and service in the community. You become a true gentleman. You become a role model to younger kids. You become (and are probably already) a great and well-meaning family member. Most of all, this sense of brotherhood and the link you have with your other La Salle classmates and alumni, make you a part of something bigger – a greater good. A greater brotherhood.

High school is a critical time for guidance and support because young men are developing ways of acting and thinking that will remain with them for life.

A NOTE

I have learned to keep an open mind and immerse myself among a variety of people. By getting involved at La Salle, I have interacted with people from different backgrounds. Despite our differences, we are united by our La Sallian brotherhood, and each group has given me relationships that I will carry with me for the rest of my life.

– CONOR JOHN McNAMARA '26

CHARACTER MATTERS

You come to us as a freshman. You find your way in our halls. You are treated with respect, dignity and, no matter who you are, you will find friends. These friendships often last a lifetime. It seems obvious, but at La Salle there is something else at work. You won't see athletes exclusively hanging out and sitting with other athletes. The same goes for those typical identifiers across academics, clubs and activities that mark every high school. We are different. We are together as a whole community. This is the hallmark of character.

Character development is more than an abstract idea at La Salle. It's a program comprised of an intentional, four-year path to deepen who you are as a person. You will travel this process through discussions, readings, and lessons with groups of your fellow students throughout your time at La Salle. Then, in your senior year, you will be invited to join a Kairos Retreat. This is an intensive culmination of your character-building journey over three days and two nights. Here, the four years will flow past you and you will see how far you have come even as you prepare for what is to come next. An invitation to attend Kairos is extended to all students. It is not mandatory. Still, nearly every student participates prior to his graduation – a testament to its reputation as a meaningful, can't-miss tradition.

The Lasallian Brotherhood is about always having people in your corner. Whether it's in the classroom, on the court, or just walking through the halls, there's a real sense that everyone is looking out for each other and wants you to succeed. I is something that I felt since the moment I stepped on campus, and I am forever grateful for it.

The rigorous academic standard set by LaSalle prepared me for higher education and gave me an advantage over many of my peers in college and beyond. That same standard of excellence has also helped me in my career as a healthcare business and leadership development professional. The motto "Enter to Learn, Leave to Serve" was instilled in me as a teenager, and service to others is embedded in everything I do personally and professionally.

La Salle did not just prepare me for my career - it shaped the person I became. By holding students to a high standard across academics, athletics, community, and family, La Salle made excellence feel like a habit rather than a goal. That mindset followed me through college, graduate school, and every professional challenge I have faced. The foundation La Salle built is one I stand on every day.

La Salle prepared me by challenging me both academically and athletically. The expectations in the classroom and on the field taught me the importance of work ethic, preparation, and being coachable. Playing baseball at La Salle also helped me learn how to be accountable to both myself and my teammates. Those lessons have carried into my early career in finance, where I have learned that success is found from putting in the extra work, being overprepared, and going above and beyond whatever task is in front of me.
