Department Projects:

Our focus across our schools right now is special education transfer decisions for students who are entering our district with special education services already in place.

This process includes carefully reviewing each incoming student's existing special education documentation and completing a sufficiency review as a team. We determine whether the documentation is current, appropriate, and sufficient for us to accept and implement as written.

Often, through that review, teams identify areas that need to be updated or changed to appropriately meet the student's needs in their new educational setting. When that occurs, the transfer process may also lead to an IEP amendment or other follow-up actions.

This work takes a significant amount of time and thoughtful team collaboration, particularly at the beginning of the school year when we have many new students entering our schools. We are committed to doing this work carefully and thoroughly so that each new student is set up with the services, supports, and accommodations they need and has meaningful access to their education from the start.
