Big Connections: Galena Park ISD Reaches Out to Bring Students Back

Galena Park ISD (GPISD) administrators spent Saturday, September 19, making a Big Difference in students' and families' lives during the District's annual "Believe in Greatness" Dropout Recovery Walk. Teams visited neighborhoods across the district, going directly to the homes of school-age students who were not enrolled in school to encourage them to enroll and continue their educational journey.

Dropout Recovery Day reflects GPISD's commitment to ensuring that every student knows they are valued and has a pathway to achieve their goals. By reconnecting with students and families, district leaders emphasized the importance of education and the opportunities that come with earning a high school diploma. Returning to school can increase graduation opportunities, expand future career options, and improve long-term earning potential.

During the visits, administrators shared information about enrollment opportunities, answered questions from families, and offered support to help students successfully transition back into a learning environment. These face-to-face conversations helped families better understand the resources available through GPISD and reinforced the District's commitment to meeting students where they are.

By working together with families, administrators strengthened Big Connections that can help students take the next step toward a brighter future. The event highlighted GPISD's commitment to creating opportunities, inspiring hope, and showing why Galena Park ISD is a Great Place to Be.
