

I grew up in downtown Boise, ID. I spent a lot of my childhood outside with friends, exploring the neighborhood as well as the hills near where we grew up. As a family we spent a lot of time camping in the summers, with a heavy focus on fly fishing.

Moving to Grand Junction 14 years ago was an easy transition, as the Western Slope offers many of the activities I love to do! I can climb, camp, bike, fish, or run anytime in GJ!

Because of my interest in the natural world, I love teaching science, and my favorite part of science to explore are ecosystems, and all the interactions within them.
