

Alphabet Arc Activities:

Ask your child's teacher for a copy of the alphabet arc or print the one attached. With the larger arc provided by the teacher, you can use magnetic letters. If you are printing a copy, please also print and cut out the letters. (See attachment: Alphabet Arc Letters)

1. Show me a letter:

Hold up a letter and say to your child, "This is the letter B" have your child take the letter and place it on the arc on top of the same letter. Repeat with other letters.

2. What letter is this?

This activity is a step up in difficulty from Show Me a Letter.

Parent holds up a letter and says, "What letter is this?" Your child should name the letter and point to the letter on the arc. Have your child take the letter and place it on the arc.

3. Match the letters:

Place the letters below the arc. Have your child match the letters to the letters on the arc.

4. What's Missing?

Have your child place all the letters on top of the arc letters.

Have your child cover their eyes while you remove a letter.

Have your child tell you the name of the missing letter.

Sound variation:

If your child needs help with letter sounds, you can do the same activities and have your child say the letter sound.

Read at Home Activities

Lap Reading:

Read a book with your child daily.

Parent and child sit next to each other or your child is sitting in your lap. You are looking at the text together. Parent is reading the book. Parent can also point to the words as they read. This will model what we call, voice print match. OR your child can point to the words as you are reading. Then, they are doing the voice print match. (Pointing to each word that you say.)

Talk about the book. Your child should do most of the talking. Some questions to ask are:

Who are the characters?

What happened in the story?

Ask your child if they can show you the front cover of the book, the back cover, and can they find the title page?

You can also have your child look for letters in the book that they are having trouble identifying or remembering. Tell your child, "This is the letter p...let's look through the book again for the letter p."

*Note: As the year progresses, we will add more to Lap Reading!

Letter Hunt Activity:

Print out the Letter Hunt recording sheet.

Have your child look through a book to find the letters.

As they find a letter, color the letter on the recording sheet.
