

Public Information Act – Nonbusiness Days

Under the Texas Public Information Act, certain days are not considered business days when calculating deadlines for responding to public information requests.

Texas Government Code §552.0031 identifies Saturdays, Sundays, certain national and state holidays, and other qualifying days as nonbusiness days. In addition, §552.0031(f) allows an independent school district's Board of Trustees to designate up to 10 additional nonbusiness days each calendar year when the district's administrative offices are closed or operating with minimum staffing.
