WHEN SEEKING COUNSELING OR BEHAVIORAL-HEALTH SERVICES

Before reaching out: It may help to have your child's age, main concerns, insurance information, scheduling needs and preference for in-person or telehealth care in mind. Ask about current availability, insurance coverage and waitlist or cancellation-list options if needed.

Insurance: When scheduling, consider confirming that the clinician is in network with your insurance and asking about any expected out-of-pocket costs. You can also contact the member services number on the back of your insurance card for help identifying in-network behavioral-health providers or understanding your coverage. If cost is a concern, ask whether sliding-scale fees or other payment options are available.

Finding the right fit: Connecting with the right services may take time. Try not to be discouraged if the first option is not the right fit or does not have an opening. Asking about waitlists, cancellations, telehealth, or another recommended provider can help you find the next option.

For additional telehealth options, Psychology Today's Therapist Directory can be used to search for providers throughout Pennsylvania and filter by child/teen age group, insurance, specialty and other needs. Review the clinician's profile and practice website for additional information.

NOTE: This directory is provided for informational purposes and does not endorse or recommend any provider or service. Information may change; confirm current services, age eligibility, availability and insurance/network status directly with the provider and/or insurance plan. For an immediate safety emergency, call 911 or go to the nearest emergency department. For mental-health or suicide crisis support, call or text 988.
