

MADISON LEARNING SERIES: FOR PARENTS, CAREGIVERS & TEACHERS

PARTNERING FOR POTENTIAL: A PARENT'S GUIDE TO THE GIFTED JOURNEY

Parenting a gifted child brings both unique challenges and incredible opportunities. This evening is designed to help you move from feeling overwhelmed to empowered as you navigate your child's educational landscape.

Join us for a practical, research-informed evening where you will learn how to build a collaborative partnership with your child's teacher and support your child's holistic growth at home.

WHEN:

Monday, January 11, 2027
6:00 - 7:15 PM

WHERE:

Madison School District
Governing Board Room
5601 N. 16th Street,
Phoenix, AZ 85016

In this session, you will learn to:

Learn how to balance honesty with age-appropriate explanations, validate intense emotions while building coping skills, and create safe spaces for processing complex feelings.

Discover techniques for transforming challenging discussions into opportunities for emotional growth, deeper parent-child connections, and increased resilience.

Discover techniques for transforming challenging discussions into opportunities for emotional growth, deeper parent-child connections, and increased resilience.

Whether you are just beginning to identify your child's needs or looking for new strategies to deepen your advocacy, this evening provides the toolkit you need to become an effective partner in your child's learning journey. You don't have to navigate this path alone—let's partner for your child's potential, together.

Karen Brown

Karen Brown is a National Board Certified Educator, award-winning author, co-owner of GiftED Consultants Group, providing training and support to school districts nationwide. A former district director of gifted education and instructor at Arizona State University, she has spent her career advocating for advanced and twice-exceptional learners. She has co-authored multiple publications, including the NAGC Book of the Year winner A Teacher's Guide to Flexible Grouping and Collaborative Learning.

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE CONTACT:

ELIZABETH WARNER, GIFTED COORDINATOR AT EWARNER@MADISONED.ORG