Meet your team physician

The Sports Medicine Division at Boston Children's Hospital is proud to provide medical coverage for Newton South High School football athletes. Sports medicine specialist Dr. Schley will be available at many games to assess player injuries, provide hands-on care, and answer questions about sports injuries and prevention.

Boston Children's Sports Medicine Division is the first and largest pediatric sports medicine practice in the country. We care for the whole athlete and offer a full range of services: from sports medicine and physical therapy, to sports nutrition and behavioral health, to strength training and injury prevention.
