Pomelo

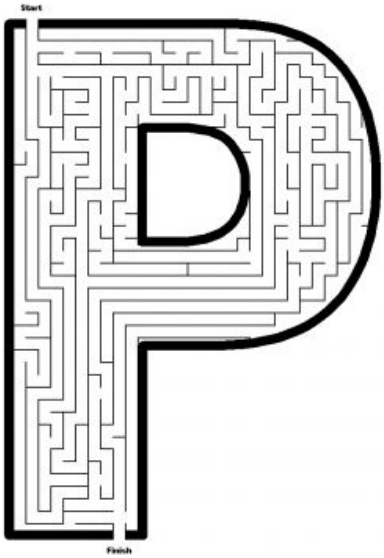

The Pomelo is a large Asian citrus fruit that's closely related to Grapefruit. It is shaped like a teardrop and has green or yellow flesh and a thick, pale rind. Sometimes it can grow to the size of a Cantaloupe!

The Pomelo tastes similar to grapefruit, but it's a little sweeter.

It contains several vitamins, minerals, and antioxidants that make it a healthy addition to your diet.

Pomelo is also considered as the biggest fruit in the citrus family. This is the main difference between grapefruit and pomelo. Its peel is very thick but soft and easy to peel away!
