

Connections Over Compliance

Thursdays:
1/7, 1/28, 2/25, 3/11, 4/1, 4/22, 5/6 from 4:15 pm to 5:45 pm

What if challenging behavior is an invitation to connect rather than a reason to control? Join us for a collaborative book study of Connections Over Compliance by Lori Desautels and explore how relationships, co-regulation, belonging, and felt safety can transform the way we understand and respond to student behavior.

Together, we'll reflect on our current practices, learn from one another's experiences, and explore practical strategies for moving from control-based approaches toward connection-centered practices that support student engagement, behavior, and learning.
Come ready to reflect, share, question, and learn—without judgment and with a focus on what's possible.
