AUTHOR SPOTLIGHT

JOSEPH BRUCHAC

Code Talker by Joseph Bruchac is a young adult fiction novel about a Navajo man named Ned Begay who is recruited into the marines to use his native language as a message sender during World War II. Although fiction, the novel is inspired by the real history of WWII and the Native American perspective of that time frame.

"We need to walk to know sacred places, those around us and those within. We need to walk to remember the songs."
