Students who bring the solved puzzle to Ms. Choate will get a small prize.

TEACHERS READ TOO

55% of CHS teachers surveyed prefer to like to read in a favorite sofa or chair. 40% like to have a cozy blanket with them. 35% like to read in the comfort of their bed.

Information from Reading Survey for Faculty & Staff

Ms. Choate is currently reading The Faraway Inn by Sarah Beth Durst, a cozy fantasy in which Calisa arrives at her great aunt's rural bed-and-breakfast for the summer only to find there's something strange. Something almost. . .otherworldly.

READING REASONS

When we read, the brain does not make a real distinction between reading about an experience and actually living it. Whether reading or experiencing it, the same neurological regions are stimulated. It seems that reading is the original virtual reality experience, at least for your brain.
