Norcliffe Academic Center

BUILDING OPPORTUNITY TOGETHER

Foundation work continues on the Norcliffe Academic Center, Cristo Rey Jesuit Seattle's permanent academic home

From Vision to Reality

One of the most exciting moments in any construction project is when progress rises above ground as structural steel goes up. What began as a vision is now visible.

With the Level 1 foundation complete and structural steel arriving and being installed, the Norcliffe Academic Center is entering a new phase.

As the building's framework takes shape, the future home of Cristo Rey Jesuit Seattle is becoming more than a plan on paper.

This phase will provide the first clear look at the scale of Cristo Rey Jesuit Seattle's future academic home.

CONSTRUCTION PROGRESS

Recently Completed

The Level 1 concrete foundation has been poured, marking another major construction milestone for the Norcliffe Academic Center.

Currently Happening

The basement floor foundation has been poured and is set. Structural steel is arriving on site and being assembled. Plumbing and electrical work beneath Level 1 continues. Large trucks will deliver materials to the construction site.

Coming Next

The Level 1 floor slab will be poured, and steel columns and beams for Levels 1 and 2 will be delivered and installed, and construction of the upper floors will begin.

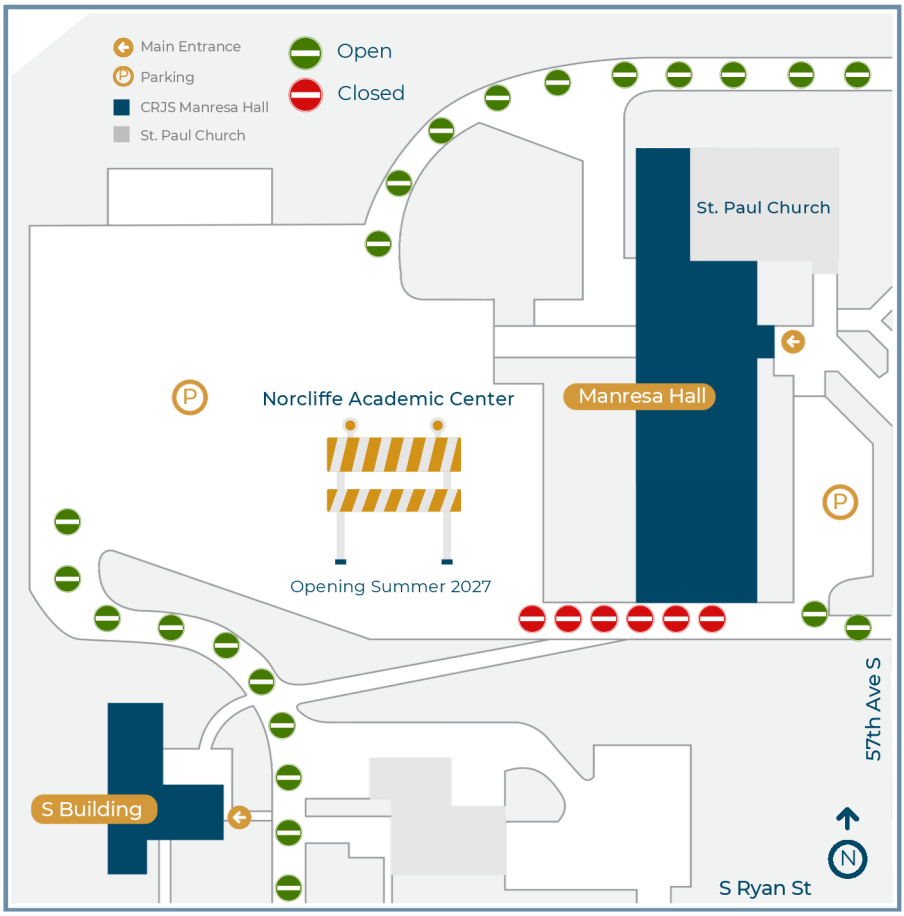

In January, work will begin on Ryan Street, as required by the City of Seattle.

PARKING

The lower driveway off 57th Avenue South near the construction site is open, and accessible parking remains available at the main entrance. The upper driveway off 57th Avenue South leading to the back parking lot will remain closed through the end of November. The back parking lot is accessible via the driveway entrance on South Ryan Street and the entrance on 57th Avenue South by the O'Dea field.
