Students Lead the Conversation on AI and the Future

On November 4, 2026, members of the Galena Park ISD Superintendent Advisory Board launched a yearlong project centered on an important question: How can we help our schools and communities use Artificial Intelligence (AI) responsibly while preparing students for the future? The meeting opened with remarks from Dr. John Moore, Superintendent of Schools, who encouraged students to think critically about emerging technologies and the opportunities they create. Led by Dr. Sherrhonda Hunter, Executive Director for School and Community Relations, students began exploring how AI is shaping education, careers, and daily life.

More than a discussion about technology, the project gives students an opportunity to serve as leaders and problem-solvers for their schools and community. As they examine both the benefits and challenges of AI, students will develop skills in research, communication, collaboration, and ethical decision-making. Their work will help ensure that conversations about AI are informed, responsible, and focused on preparing future-ready learners.

Throughout the year, advisory board members will design a campus and community awareness campaign that promotes understanding of AI and encourages its responsible use. By engaging students, staff, families, and community members, the campaign will create opportunities for meaningful dialogue about how technology can support learning while maintaining safety, integrity, and human connection.

The journey will culminate on February 10, 2027, when students present their awareness campaign and recommendations to district leaders. Through this process, students are not only learning about the future of technology, but they are also helping shape it. Their leadership reflects GPISD's commitment to creating Big Ideas, fostering Big Conversations, and opening doors to future careers and opportunities. By empowering students to tackle real-world challenges today, Galena Park ISD is preparing tomorrow's leaders and proving once again why it is A Great Place to Be!
