Part A/Part B Showdown #2	Desert Myth Buster	Paragraph Scavenger Hunt #2

Reading Passage

#1 When the hot sun sets over the Arizona desert, many animals wake up to start their day. During the blazing afternoon, ceatures like the kangaroo rat and the Great Plains toad sleep in underground burrows to stay cool. When night falls, the desert air cools down, and the "night shift" begins.

#2 Nocturnal animals have special features that help them survive in the dark. For example, the kit fox has huge ears that act like sound dishes. These large ears help it hear tiny rustle of insects or mice in the sand from far away. Meanwhile, bats use echolocation - making high-pitched squeaks that bounce off objects - to navigate through the dark night sky.

#3 Finding water in the dry desert night is tough, but some animals don't need to drink at all! The kangaroo rat gets all the water it needs just by eating dry seeds. Its body is an expert at saving water, so it never has to drink from a puddle. These amazing features allow desert creatures to thrive under the starlight.
